THE DARK STAR

Thousands of readers have demanded another story like "The Girl Philippa." Here's a better one. From the moment Jim Neeland, in New York, receives that cablegram from Ruhannah Carew in Paris, asking him to bring to her at once a box containing valuable military information, he becomes the center of a maze of intrigue and adventure such as few men ever experienced. With German and Turkish secret agents continually at his heels, his life is in constant peril, and his escapes from death miraculous. But the reward that awaits him proves to be worth all he goes through. 32 full-page pictures by W. D. Stevens. $1.50 net. Ready May 11th.

it is "an idyl of motherhood without a note out of tune." Never before has the first year of a baby's life been portrayed with such tenderness and magic charm as in this anonymous story. "A veritable literary triumph," the Boston Transcript called it, and the New York Times said, "It is a happy book, for Pierrot was a joyous and adorable baby." Many illustrations in tint and black-and-white by Lester G. Hornby make this one of the most attractive books we have recently published. Its price is $1.50, and a portion of the proceeds will be set aside for the fatherless children of France.

COMMON SENSE OPTIMISM AND A FORWARD MOVEMENT IN THE BOOK-TRADE

THE American book-trade, from publishing to retailing, should be as pervasive and as prosperous as any interest in the country. It is not. It should increase directly in proportion with the increase of population and the spread of education. It does not. Why?

To answer these questions—if they could be fully answered—might require volumes of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. But we are glad at all times to print evidence and suggestions bearing on the problem and proposed solutions, and we venture, in view of the Booksellers' Convention in New York this month, to emphasize certain thoughts of common sense optimism which may look toward a forward movement thruout the book-trade.

The prime difficulty in the trade is the "vicious circle," not infrequent in affairs, which presents the same deadlock and requires as much drive to break into as the entrenched lines in modern warfare. The booksellers want to do all they can to push books, but complain that the publishers don't support them and use instead all sorts of ultra-bookstore methods. The publishers want to push their books thru the regular trade, but feel that the booksellers don't back them.

Booksellers as well as publishers have come to recognize that overhead costs in the book-trade are high, and that to do business at less than cost is suicidal. On the other hand, in the book-trade particularly, overhead costs decrease as business increases—which is a great stimulus to effort.

First of all, the net-price system is the sheet anchor of success in the book-trade. Net prices should be maintained, therefore, not by help of methods and devices which the courts nullify or enjoin, but by the common sense of publishers and booksellers alike. Trade discounts should be large enough to cover reasonable overhead and reasonable profit, but not so excessive as to invite price-cutting. The bookseller should keep a stiff upper lip and maintain prices, even with under-cutting competition across the street. Secondly, the large sale of books otherwise than thru bookstores proves that the market for books is much larger than retailers exploit, and that price-cutting is not necessary to work this market. In fact, prices by outside methods are rather higher than thru the regular trade. It is the exception when a "regular" book is not worth all that is asked for it, while it is notorious that subscription books are priced exorbitantly high.

That the bookseller has grievances is not to be denied. It is a first principle of business that the manufacturer should not compete with his distributor, especially in price. All he can rightly and wisely do is to cover, on even prices, fields which lack distributing facilities. It is unwise for the publisher to invite direct sales thru the mails where the bookseller can do the business, and, as the booksellers rightly contend, reference should always be made to the local booksellers and postage always added to the retail price. But this competition is not so large as to be a vital matter, and we trust the coming Convention will give less time and thought to negative criticism than to positive effort. Since this question has been brought prominently forward, we have taken some pains to ascertain the percentage of such sales by publishers: in several cases, these are reported as not more than one per cent., and in no case have we found them reaching ten per cent., in the case of trade books from "regular" publishers.

On the other hand, "mail order" business by publishers has reached enormous proportions. It has largely taken the place of the old subscription method, which has fallen rather flat in these latter days. "Schemes," as they are characteristically called, for pushing lines of books have, in fact, come to be most important features of a successful publishing business. Publishers who have been ingenious and successful in these lines of selling report that book-trade sales have been stimulated rather than lessened by the advertising which these schemes involve; and altho this may be questioned as a general statement, it is doubtless true in some cases. In a case of which we have direct word, a leading periodical has sold 160,000 sets of a certain author, not thru its own large subscription list, but by costly "mail order" advertising outside, at a cost said to approximate $250,000. And the publishers report that sales of this author thru bookstores have doubled because of this advertising, instead of decreasing because of this competition.

The bookseller naturally asks whether this expenditure for advertising in support of the regular trade might not have produced as good or better results. The publisher naturally replies that he can not be expected to give the desired discounts to the trade and also pay for all the advertising. Nevertheless the entrepreneur, in this case the periodical, as well as the publisher, must reap a profit outside the cost of advertising. As usual, the truth is somewhere between the attitude of the publisher in this matter and that of the retailer, and the solution lies in co-operation between publisher and bookseller in advertising and other exploitation. The publisher cannot be expected to refrain from methods which sell books and which pay a profit, and the bookseller cannot expect to grow prosperous on the things publishers refrain from doing.

Now, the problem of the bookseller concentrates into this—how shall he put himself in shape to take advantage of all these trade methods that can be applied in his local business? He can't do it by sitting in his bookstore and waiting for customers to come in and ask for the book they want. He must go out into the highways and byways and, by all sorts of advertising and personal solicitation, compel them to come in, or make sales in their homes. The bookseller, for himself and thru his clerks—of which more and more will be women—must study his community and come to know every potential book-buyer, and sell him the book he ought to buy. More than a year ago (February 19, 1916) we emphasized this thought regarding technical books, and we ask booksellers to re-read this article before coming to the Convention. It cites one actual case of a technical book on oils at $18, which was specifically urged upon the local bookseller, who failed to use his opportunity and left it to the publisher to sell nearly a score of copies in that locality by circularizing, a sale which might have been doubled thru the personal solicitation of the bookseller in a few days work. In some instances, publishers of technical books and jobbers have made the mistake of cutting prices by special discounts to large concerns, but this has been the exception and not the rule, tho in other cases publishers make too close a discount to encourage or even permit sales thru the regular trade. We printed two weeks ago the story of the sale by subscription in a suburban town such as is too often counted "too small to support a bookstore" of nearly a thousand copies of an expensive set, covering house rent and a good living for the peripatetic bookseller for a year. The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has been emphasizing these thoughts and giving examples for decades past, and we now plead for a strong pull and a long pull and a pull together in a forward movement.

Incidentally we ask our friends to send us instances of successful bookselling, inside or outside the regular trade, which will add proof of what the book market in this country may be.

To make a bookstore "go" the bookseller should invite customers to come in by window display, varied and specialized from week to week or from day to day, like a dry-goods store. He should make special displays within on timely topics, and send specific invitations to those who are or might be interested. He should post himself and see that his clerks are posted, from the annotations in our Weekly Record and from other sources, as to what is inside current books. If he uses an imprint periodical, like the Monthly Book Review, he should read it thru and see that his clerks read it thru, and send copies to selected names, blue-penciling notes of books which his card index shows that the customer should want. It is by such close knowledge of the local clientele that the German system of selling books on approval has been profitably worked out, a system which the technical publishers are using in direct sales to-day so effectively in this country. A. D. F. Randolph once said that his best advertising as a publisher was by giving or loaning to some leisurely ladies copies of the books he wanted to push, and the bookseller may sometimes do this to advantage.

Part of each day should be devoted by the bookseller and by each clerk to personal visitation of possible buyers in their homes, with a book or books they might want, but above all with a cordial invitation to come into the store any time and look over books. Reading clubs should find the bookstore as ready as the library to help them with counsel as well as by selling books, and the local bookseller should everywhere be in friendly and frequent consultation with the local librarian in the common work of promoting good reading. Every modern librarian gladly accepts the dictum that "a book owned is better than a book borrowed," and is ready to make the enterprising bookseller his chief ally. The local newspaper may be used for "mail order" business in the locality, and when this channel is well used the publisher is frequently willing to share the expense with the bookseller.

A large element of publishing and book-selling cost is, of course, in remainder copies and books that "don't sell." A market for these and for shop-worn or soiled copies is properly found by clearance sales or by local auctions, at which last expensive sets of standard books can also be sold to good advantage. This should not and need not in any way interfere with price maintenance on regular lines, and often it increases instead of decreasing regular bookselling. A generation ago, Worthington, Pratt, "Joe" Foster and the gifted MacDevitt did wonders in this direction. And this is but one of many methods which the bookseller should study and utilize. Periodical subscriptions, for instance, are a profitable field little worked by the American bookseller, altho in Germany, where the book-trade has its model organization, they form an important part of every bookseller's business.

Every modern business of importance depends upon its sales organization for selling success. "Big business" unifies this organization, and each has its own sales system. The publishing business is not concentrated to the same extent, and must always be a business of competition. But much may and should be done to foster co-operation among publishers, in close association with co-operating booksellers, not only to obtain "intensive" sales of books where there are booksellers, but to plant bookstores in communities where with good work they will succeed. The bookseller should not be afraid of nearby competition, but should rather welcome it, for the potential book market is far beyond present realization, and every man who comes into the field helps the existing organization. The publishers, if well organized for that purpose, could profitably employ a high-salaried general manager, who would make it his business to organize a better distributing system thruout the country and make it unnecessary to use the many "schemes" of which booksellers now complain.

We believe that it would be well worth while to select some specific field, as a single State, and make a practical experiment on "intensive" bookselling thruout this field, strengthening existing bookstores, placing new agencies and planning to reach every potential book buyer within the State. We have in mind a State which invites that treatment, and we should be glad to co-operate with publishers and booksellers in trying the experiment.

Meantime we again urge upon the coming Convention common sense optimism and a forward movement. Instead of wasting time on negative criticism as to details, let us have a strong endeavor to do positive things, to make the most of present potentialities by every means that can be utilized. Publishers and booksellers have a common aim and a common interest. We feel that instead of confining the Convention to retail members, it would be well not only to invite publishers but to ask all interested to come in, as was done in the great Book Congress recently held in France. The book-trade is not one of trade secrets. It needs and can use all the help and helpers it can get. Come everyone who can and then let everyone as he returns go back with a new spirit, befitting the time, of determination to exert every possible effort to make his locality a book-buying and book-reading community, and thus join with the librarian and the teacher in the uplift of his country.

HOW AN ENGLISH PUBLISHER MET THE WAR

WHEN THE WAR BROKE OUT THE FIRM OF HERBERT JENKINS, LIMITED, IN LONDON, WAS ONLY TWO YEARS OLD. IN AN ARTICLE IN THE ENGLISH EDITION OF "SYSTEM," MR. JENKINS EXPLAINS HOW HE PILOTED THE YOUNG BUSINESS THRU THE STORMY SEAS OF WAR CONDITIONS

My answer to the question put to me by the editor of System is: "I met the war by determining to forget all I knew about my business, and to learn afresh under the new conditions."

I have always considered that the business man should from time to time revise his methods, just as a careful financier revises his investments. For what are methods but business investments?

Who can deny that the increasingly keen competition and changes in the buying or selling markets frequently demand a revival of methods, bringing them into line with the new conditions?

This applies to my own business, publishing, just as it no doubt applies to the selling of incubators and hatpins. A publisher's business may be divided into four parts:

(1) The selection of the raw material—author's manuscripts.

(2) Manufacture.—With the aid of secondary raw material, such as paper, ink, etc., he has to produce them in the form of books.

(3) Distribution.—He has to distribute his product all over the world.

(4) Publicity.—Having placed books on the booksellers' shelves, he has to move them thence; for the bookseller, like many another retailer, does best when you are thinking out his selling schemes for him, and helping him in every possible way by making your products popular.

It cannot be said that one is more important than another, and if This is emphasized it must always be at the expense of That. You may get a fine book and ruin its chances in the handling, viz., by publishing at the wrong price, in the wrong style, or at the wrong season. This is largely a matter of instinct, which, after all, is crystallized experience. A business man should always give himself, say, half an hour a day for "a big think." It would save him many mistakes, and his instinct will be less fallible in consequence.

From August, 1914, there were no safe standards to guide the business man. Of none can this be more truly said than of the publisher. How would the war affect public taste? Would books be read where there was so much in the newspapers? What books would be read, if any? These were some of the questions that presented themselves to the bewildered producer of books. The same questions had to be answered by the producers of other luxury commodities.

For my part I came to the following conclusions:

(1) That this would be a long war. I took Lord Kitchener's three years as a minimum.

(2) At first the public would be in a state of flux, too restless and excited to buy my products.

(3) Later it would want a special war product—the war book.

(4) Then there would come a reaction when the public would demand nothing but our lightest weights. But how great this demand for literary confectionery would be, I could not possibly determine.

My co-directors, Sir George Chubb and Mr. Alex W. Hill, agreed in this view, and we settled our policy accordingly. As we had produced our first book less than two years previously, you can imagine thru what anxious days we lived.

We held over the whole of our autumn catalog, in spite of the fact that the books were manufactured, and would have to be paid for, with no possibility of any return for about eighteen months.

I then set about finding the war specialty which would sell. It was a long and arduous search. Our chief successes were Sir Robert Baden Powell's "Quick Training for the War" and Mr. Cecil Chisholm's "Sir John French." To produce these books to meet war-time conditions, we had to revolutionize our entire publishing methods:

(1) I had to select such material as could be quickly delivered at the most reasonable price.

(2) I had to expedite the manufacturer, and here I received splendid support.

(3) I had to find a very rapid means of distribution to the specialized public desiring the product.

(4) I had to think out an extremely rapid publicity scheme to reach potential consumers who did not know that they were potential consumers until I told them.

The paper shortage was then not a serious factor; but with troop-trains monopolizing the rails, the getting it to the printers was something of a problem. By telephone, telegram, but principally by the goodwill of my friends among printers, binders and stationers we got the books produced in record time. Verb. sap. Always be on good terms with the men who are producing your merchandise.

Then came the distribution problem. Our staff had enlisted (altogether we sent eleven men to the Colors, not one being conscripted), and I had to gather together a scratch and entirely inexperienced staff.

I turned the office into a circularizing bureau. I circularized Rifle-clubs, Booksellers, Scoutmasters, Banks, Mess-presidents, and, in particular, every officer as he was gazetted to a regiment. Orders from private people soon began to reach us by every post. These I forwarded, together with the remittance enclosed, to the bookseller nearest to the sender, with particulars about the book ordered, at the same time advising the customer of what had been done. This entailed an enormous amount of work and constant supervision. I had representatives call on commanding officers of large training-camps, who in many cases undertook to distribute prospectuses of "Quick Training for War." These prospectuses I printed by the hundreds of thousands. My publicity method was to spend almost the entire advertising appropriation on circularizing. Get at the people direct was my view, particularly officers and men of the army then forming.

So much for the first crisis. Now let me show what I learned from it, and give some idea of the methods which I now find most efficient in meeting present-day war problems.

I saw that paper was to be our great trouble. Stationers, like linen-draperies, suffer from remnants. I set to work buying up these small parcels and "matching" them into sufficient quantities for editions. I went over one large warehouse, and in an hour purchased upwards of £500 worth of paper at the then price for less than £300. I found firms very willing to clear out this stuff, as I was practically the only purchaser in bulk. I still bought in the open market, paying cash everywhere. This served a double purpose, it got us preferential treatment and rock-bottom prices; but most valuable of all it established our credit unshakably at a time when every business man was wondering whom he could trust.

My staff! How it anguished me! No travelers, no clerks, no nothing. Slowly we evolved some sort of order. I worked night and day, even Christmas Day, and I turned my hand to everything. The week in which I write this is an instance. I heard that ten days hence was to be published a book that would actively compete with a volume we planned to publish at the same time. We must anticipate it! Extra packers? Impossible! They don't exist. My "scratch staff" responded loyally, worked magnificently, and I myself in seven hours packed 2000 books into upwards of 80 bales and parcels. At the end I felt like a two-year-old, the change from mental to physical work proving most refreshing. I then sat down to write this article. Such is the life of a publisher in war time!

Our special war products took us to the end of 1914. What of the future?

With the spring of 1915 we decided that the public would soon get tired of reading German war philosophy, and would look for other and less primitive diet. We determined to publish more or less as in normal times. This we did with excellent results.

A lady once said to me, "I cannot see what you can find to do. You accept a manuscript, send it to the printer and binder, and then publish it. It seems so easy." The real work of a good business man is that which he makes for himself. He must not only know the cheapest and best markets, but he should know the state of mind of the masters and men who are producing in those markets.

Is there unrest among the workers? Is the supply of raw material necessary to his work assured? Is there unrest in any other market that is likely adversely to affect that in which he is interested? Unless a man know these things his business may be brought to a sudden and disastrous standstill. Applying this to publishing, here are a few of the things that have to be taken into consideration:

The supply of pulp for paper.

The supply of strawboards.

The supply of cloth.

Unrest among papermakers.

Unrest among printers.

Unrest among binders.

Unrest among railway-workers.

A printers' or binders' strike, unless foreseen and provided against, may paralyze a publisher's entire business. I have always interested myself in the least breath of trouble among the workers, or the first intimation that there may be a shortage of material. Therefore to the business man it may be permissible to revise the words of the Delphic oracle into "Know thy Markets," he need not bother about knowing himself, other people will enlighten him on that point.

At no other time within my knowledge has this been so necessary as since the war, when everything has been rendered topsy-turvy by enlistment, conscription and transport difficulties. The cost of production has gradually risen, whereas the published price of books has remained the same.

To give an illustration of the value of inside knowledge. One day I received a hint that there would be a rise in price in a certain direction. Within an hour I had given orders to binders and printers for nearly 200,000 books, mostly shilling reprints. The value of that information represented a very considerable sum of money. On another occasion I got an order for paper accepted a few hours before the price jumped up. This again was entirely due to a friendly hint.

In every product and industry the question of distribution is of a vital and increasing importance in direct ratio to its distance from being regarded as a necessity. Unfortunately books are not considered a necessity, and therefore their distribution is a matter for very careful thought and organization.

When war broke out the bookseller was not the happiest of men. What would it mean for him? Would people cease to read? He soon took courage and voted for going ahead. He has been proved right. To give some idea of the difference between 1914 and 1916 I have had our August sales taken out, and for every 100 books sold in August, 1914, we have sold 5200 in 1916.

I determined to keep our travelers moving, even if it entailed loss, which fortunately it did not. Their orders surprised me. In short the "business as usual" principle has proved in every way a success. A bookseller soon gets to know the capacity of different publishers for gauging the public taste. He welcomes the representative of the firm whose books sell easily.

There is no surer or better business principle than to cultivate the confidence of the retailer. Give him what he can sell and he will buy.

A wit once said: "The artist is known by what he annexes, and he annexes everything." So with the real publicity man. If he is to catch the long ear, or the roving eye, of the public, he must ask himself what is most likely to make his man stop and read what he has to tell. I have just annexed two lines from one of my poets with which to head my list, viz.:

..... we want
The new thing ever as the old thing grows
Spectral and weary

The true humor of the situation will develop when he discovers the fact. Publishers' advertisements are slowly evolving from titles of books followed by press notices into something attractive to the eye and arresting to the mind.

I remember a friend telling me that the editor of a magazine once said that his stories had not enough "snap" in the first paragraph. "This is how you should begin," he said:

"'Damn,' said the curate."

"It does not matter what follows," added the editor, "everybody is going to read that story to see why the curate said 'Damn!'"

That publisher is made for life, who has the courage to head his list with:

"'Damn!' said the Archbishop."

In this country we are far too prone to sit upon the comfortable armchair of tradition, with our feet on the footwarmer of convention. It was a long time before we annexed the picture book-jacket from America. In the meantime America had captured a large part of the Australian book-market, because Australia liked picture book-jackets, and as she could not get them from Great Britain she bought them from America.

I have spent far more money on advertising since the war than before. On one occasion I spent between £200 and £300 upon one book in ten days, and with excellent results. But even here methods had to be adjusted to the new conditions operating.

Publicity does not mean newspaper advertising alone. I cannot pursue this matter too far without divulging valuable business secrets; but, as an illustration, within one month I printed nearly a quarter of a million prospectuses of Patrick MacGill's books and distributed them in a way that I knew would involve a minimum of waste.

The business man, be he publisher or pork-butcher, should have confidence in his convictions. If I believe in a book I will print a big first edition, then I have to sell it unless I wish to prove myself a very bad judge of the public taste.

When I ran off a first edition of 10,000 copies of my own book, "Bindle," a certain acquaintance remarked to another that it was "damned cheek!" Within seven weeks we were printing another 10,000. The public likes "damned cheek" sometimes.

One of my business precepts is to get one article always to "talk" about others, those others being more or less kindred in subject or idea. I do this by filling up any blank pages at the end with advertisements, printing them on the reverse of the jackets, and by inserting slips in each volume sent out. An advertisement or a slip in itself is not sufficient. It must be so written and so printed as to arouse curiosity. Man is the most inquisitive of animals.

I am appalled at the waste of advertising possibilities. Take matches, for instance. Why is not an advertisement inserted in each box—of cigarettes, soap, pills? In winter I would advertise "How to cure a cold," in summer "How to keep cool." I have just lighted a cigarette; on the reverse of the box is a piece of plain blue paper instead of an advertisement!

One thing that has struck me in particular since the war has been the way in which accounts have been settled. With few exceptions we have found collections as good if not better than in peace time.

Possibly this is due to the system we have adopted of writing periodically to firms that have exceeded their credit. We generally use three distinct forms of letter:

(1) A reminder that the account is overdue, a fact that has probably escaped the customer's notice.

(2) A letter referring to our previous communication, pointing out that our accounts are quarterly, and that we shall be glad of a remittance within, say, a week. All this more in sorrow than in anger.

(3) If the firm be known as dilatory in payments a "Final Application," expressing regret that our previous letters have remained unanswered, and requesting politely, but firmly, that a remittance be sent before a specified date, when the matter will pass out of our hands.

When customers know that a counting-house is run on definite business lines their respect grows, and their checks arrive. It is a mistake to think that you will offend by applying for what is due. You may annoy the man who does not want to pay; but the straightforward business man will quickly realize that he is merely being done to as he wishes to be done by.

The greatest mistake in the world is to apply for an account because you have "heavy liabilities to meet;" it shakes confidence and harms credit. It's a silly cliché.

The editor has asked me to insert in the proof some business aphorisms. Here are a few precepts that I keep well in mind:

The publisher who announces eight editions in three days is a bad publisher; he has undervalued his product.

"Damned cheek" is sometimes far-sightedness.

Never be content with supplying what the public wants. If it asks for a sprat, sell it a whale.

The greatest business asset is enthusiasm chastened by judgment.

Beware of the man whose hat is on at the hour the office closes. He's not a business man, but should be in a government office.

Next to "damned cheek" come hard work and clear thinking.

Never be too busy to give a helping hand to someone else. It's a very small seed from which an oak springs.

Don't become a machine. Yesterday has buried her failures; to-morrow has not yet opened her bag of opportunities.

Profit is doubly profit when spent in expansion.

A man's profits are frequently the losses he avoids.

POSTAL NOTES

POST OFFICE WARNS AGAINST USE OF FLAG STICKERS ON MAIL

THE New York Post Office has issued a warning to the public against the use of pasters or stickers showing the American flag on the envelopes or wrappers of mail matter in such manner that the flag may be defaced by the postmarking or cancelling stamps, and also against the pasting of such stickers over the edges of folders, cards, etc.

BOOK-TRADE ASSOCIATIONS

BOSTON BOOKSELLERS ASSOCIATION HOLDS FIRST DINNER

THE first dinner of the Boston Booksellers' Association was held at the rooms of the Twentieth Century Club, on the evening of Wednesday, April 25, with 162 members and guests present. Charles E. Lauriat, jr., presided as temporary chairman until the following permanent organization was effected: President, V. M. Schenck of the Pilgrim Press; first vice-president, E. A. Pitman of Jordan-Marsh Co.; second vice-president, W. F. Gregory of Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co.; secretary, A. E. Watkins of DeWolfe &

Fiske Co.; treasurer, A. C. Grainger of Charles E. Lauriat Co.; board of managers, for one year, Joseph M. Ryan of Old Corner Bookstore, Ralph T. Hale of Small, Maynard & Co.; board of managers, for two years, O. A. Blaisdell of G. W. Armstrong Co., A. R. McIntyre of Little, Brown & Co.; board of managers for three years, L. J. Jobin of Schoenhof Co., W. B. Pratt of Houghton Mifflin Co.

After the dinner, President Schenck introduced Rev. Edward A. Horton, Chaplain of the Massachusetts Senate, who made a patriotic address. The evening closed with a talk by Leslie Buswell, author of "Ambulance No. 10," on his experiences in the American Ambulance Service in France. His talk was illustrated with stereopticon views which he had taken.

OBITUARY

RABBI JOSEPH LEONARD LEVY, clergyman and author, died in Pittsburgh, April 26 in his fifty-second year. Dr. Levy was the author of "A Book of Prayer," 1902; "A Graduated Text Book of Religion," 1903; "Nineteenth Century Prophets," 1907; "Founders of the Faiths," 1908; "Old Arrows from New Quivers," 1909; and sixteen volumes of sermons.

ELEANOR C. DONNELLY, author of more than fifty volumes of poetry, most of it of a religious nature, and a frequent contributor to Catholic magazines, died on May 1 at Westchester, Penn., in her seventy-ninth year. The Pope honored her several times with special marks of approval. Miss Donnelly was called the "Adelaide Proctor of America." She was the sister of Ignatius Donnelly, author of the cryptogram by which he contended Sir Francis Bacon wrote Shakespeare's plays.

WARREN E. PRICE, editor and publisher of the Publisher and Retailer, died in the Knickerbocker Hospital, New York, on April 4. He was about fifty-two years old. In early life, Mr. Price, with his mother, conducted a "Paper Book Shop" in San Francisco. He also edited a trade paper under the name of the Bookseller and Newsdealer which began in 1890. During this period he came in conflict with the law for selling "taboo" books with the result that he served a prison sentence. About fifteen years ago he came, with his paper, to New York, issuing it from the headquarters of the Consolidated Booksellers' Association. He also published an eclectic literary periodical called the Booklover. Both passed out of his hands in 1904 and he then started the Publisher and Retailer in the interests of newsdealers, continuing its publication with more or less regularity until his death. He also edited for several years a magazine of literature under the title of the Rose Jar. It is announced that the Publisher and Retailer will be discontinued.

BENJAMIN W. DODGE, word of whose death last month has just come to us, was in his day widely known in the trade, both as a traveling salesman and as a publisher. He was born in Vermont of old New England stock. Soon after leaving college he entered the book-trade. He was chief clerk in the retail department of Scrantom, Wetmore & Co., Rochester, nearly thirty years ago and in 1892 formed a partnership with H. Brown, formerly with Steele & Avery of that city, under the firm name of Dodge & Brown Co. Eventually he came to New York and traveled for Dodd, Mead & Co. for a decade or longer. Later he was buyer for the book department of Loeser's in Brooklyn. In 1906 he started in the publishing business under the firm name of B. W. Dodge & Company. He issued fiction by such well-known authors as Snaith, Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes, Demetra Vaka, John Masefield and Upton Sinclair. His biggest success was Theodore Dreiser's first novel, "Sister Carrie." In 1910 the business got into financial difficulties and eventually was disintegrated. Since 1912 Mr. Dodge has not been connected with the book-trade. "Ben" Dodge, as he was familiarly known to scores of friends and acquaintances in the trade, had many fine qualities. He made friends easily and kept them, and few men in the trade of his day were more widely known. Widely read and experienced in every phase of bookselling, he had an unusual fund of knowledge of the personnel of the past generation of the book-trade and its methods. He was fifty-five years of age and leaves a widow but no children.

PERIODICAL NOTES

Aero World has suspended publication.

American Red Cross Magazine has advanced from $1 to $2 a year.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

THE HOUGHTON MIFFLIN Co. has prepared posters for "The Yukon Trail" and "The Altar of Freedom" that should prove excellent business getters for the retailer.

P. BLAKISTON'S SON & Co., of Philadelphia, have issued a new and revised edition of their general catalog with many important changes and additions.

THE MILITARY PUBLISHING Co., 42 Broadway, New York City, announces among its pocket size text-books of United States Army Regulations, "Field Service" and "Small Arms Firing Manual."

"ONE YEAR OF PIERROT," a charming anonymous story of the first year in the life of a French baby, and "To Mother," an anthology of mother verse, are announced by Houghton Mifflin Co. for publication on May 5. Since Mother's Day comes on May 12, both books are particularly timely.

ROBERT SCOTT, the London publisher, has purchased thru J. D. Pattullo, acting under instruction of the Board of Trade, the London publishing business formerly carried on by Ernest Nister, a German, at 26 and 28 St. Bride Street, E. C. The business will be continued for the present at the old address "as a distinctly British concern," all new publications being entirely of British manufacture.

THE PUBLISHERS of The Encyclopedia Britannica will issue as soon as possible after peace is concluded a comprehensive and connected narrative of the war written from an international point of view with the collaboration of writers of each of the belligerent nations.

THE PURPOSE OF Richardson Wright's timely book, "The Russians: An Interpretation," published this week by Frederick A. Stokes Co., is to get under the skin of the Russian and show, particularly to Americans, what the Russian's idea of pleasure is, what he hopes, thinks and believes.

"INSIDE THE BRITISH ISLES," by Arthur Gleason, will be published by the Century Co. this month. Mr. Gleason has been studying conditions in England since the outbreak of the war and he takes up a number of social and economic questions of especial interest to America as she faces the war.

A TIMESAVER for the man training for officership is "Complete U. S. Infantry Guide," a compilation by Maj. C. M. Tobin and Capt. J. K. Parsons, to be published soon by J. B. Lippincott Co. It includes an actual reprint of all the material referring to infantry contained in nineteen or twenty Government volumes.

THE ANNUAL "ENGLISH CATALOGUE of Books," which is usually ready for delivery early in April, has been delayed this year as both printers and binders are short-handed owing to military demands. Everything possible is being done to hasten its completion but it may be several weeks before copies for American subscribers arrive.

THE PATRIOTIC SOCIETY of 8 Beacon street, Boston, is issuing a second edition of The Patriotic Series including "The President's War Message" by Woodrow Wilson; "The Man Without a Country" by Edward Everett Hale, and "Our National Songs." The society has sold 30,000 copies of these books in the last two weeks.

WHY DOES WAR EXIST? is one of the questions analyzed in "The Psychology of Citizenship" by Arland D. Weeks, recently published by A. C. McClurg & Co. in the National Social Science Series. The book is a study of the psychology of our relations to civic affairs and deals with mental traits affecting the quality of citizenship.

JOHN W. LUCE & Co. have added to their series of Russian translations Dostoevsky's "Journal of an Author," including the famous essay on Pushkin, and Leon Shestov's "Penultimate Words," a series of literary and philosophical essays by a contemporary critic of accepted rank.

"FRUITS OF THE SPIRIT" is a new volume of inspirational essays by the late Hamilton Wright Mabie, originally published in the Outlook and lately issued in book form by Dodd, Mead & Co. These essays are concerned with the fundamentals of faith, action and achievement. Lyman Abbott has written the introduction.

ROBERT J. SHORES, the New York publisher, is seeking to interest the various publishing houses in contributing books from their lists to the American soldiers in the camps. His plan is to send the books to the American Red Cross, which will see that a book is put in each Comfort Kit. Mr. Shores will furnish further details upon application.

FOND MOTHERS need not fight shy of "Pirates by Force," to be published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co., in May, for under this title, which will captivate the boys, C. H. Claudy has written a wholesome tale with a real tho unobtrusive moral. It tells the story of two boys antagonistic at first but obliged to admit, when tried by unusual experiences, that the other fellow has some good points.

THE POWERS PHOTO ENGRAVING Co. of New York, the independent photo-engravers who last week filed a $500,000 suit against the photo-engravers' union and secured a temporary injunction restraining the union from calling its employees out on strike, has settled its differences with the union out of court and discontinued both suit and injunction.

HERBERT WARD, chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur, artist, journalist and lecturer, has made our French brothers in arms very real in "Mr. Poilu: Notes and Sketches with the Fighting French" to be published soon by the George H. Doran Co. The drawings and paintings reproduced in this volume were made under fire during Mr. Ward's active service in the Vosges in 1915.

WORD COMES, via Geneva, thru the Droit d'Auteur, that the Manchester Guardian announces the projection of an English Baedeker, which is to be done by the former British editors employed by the Leipzig house of Baedeker. With this end in view, they have acquired the rights in the travel guides of Murray and Macmillan. The first volumes in the British Baedeker are to cover London, Paris, Belgium and Northern France.

LONG AGO, says legend, metal from the Dark Star fell to earth and from it a dagger was made. Wherever it remained there was war, but only the children born under the Dark Star suffered. About this tradition Robert W. Chambers has woven his latest romance, "The Dark Star," a novel of intrigue and adventure which, in spite of its legendary source, is set in the twentieth century and in the scenes of the European War. It will be published by D. Appleton & Co. on May 11.

ACCORDING TO the Federal Trade Commission, Lord Northcliffe, the English publisher, will probably turn over to American newspapers the output of his Newfoundland paper mills. The addition of the 66,000 tons of paper produced annually by the Northcliffe mills will, it is believed, break the print paper market and assure small publishers an adequate supply at lower prices. Suggestions that the United States be permitted to take the production of the Northcliffe plants were made by the Trade Commission some weeks ago to the British publisher, who accepted, it is said, on condition that the paper go only to small publishers. The paper will be distributed by the publishers' association under supervision of the Trade Commission.

THE POLICE of Basel, Switzerland, recently unearthed an interesting attempt to smuggle forbidden literature into Germany. A number of bales and cases had been unloaded before the shop of a dealer in Basel. It was supposed at first that it was an attempt to smuggle foodstuffs into Germany, and an investigation was made by the customs authorities. To their surprise, no foodstuffs were found, but a large number of packages of pamphlets. The pamphlets were "Wittelsbach gegen Hohenzollern," in which the dethroning of the Prussian emperor as the German emperor is planned and the contrast between northern and southern Germany again revived. It appeared that the dealer was to pack these up into waterproof bags, which were also in the cases, and let them float down the Rhine in order to bring them into Germany this way. The pair were arrested.

AN INTERESTING CONTRIBUTION to our literature on the contemporary drama of Europe will be published this month by Scribner's in a volume of Jacinto Benavente's plays. Benavente is acknowledged in Spain as the leader in the rejuvenation of the drama there. He has written no less than seventy-five dramas, besides other volumes of table-talk and essays. In the forthcoming Scribner volume Benavente is introduced to the American public thru the publication of a volume of four of his most representative plays. The translation is by John Garrett Underhill, representative in the United States and Canada of the Sociedad de Autores Españoles. These plays are "The Husband of His Widow," a brilliant and amusing comedy of manners; "La Malquerida" (the ill-loved), a splendid peasant tragedy; "The Evil Doers of Good," a satirical revelation of the hypocrisy of the attitude of "Society"; and "The Bonds of Interest," a Molièresque comedy.

Updegraff, Allan. Second youth; being in the main, some account of the middle comedy in the life of a New York bachelor; a novel. N. Y., Harper. [c. '17] 327 p. front. D $1.35 n.

Romance had passed Roland Francis, silk salesman, by until his thirty-fifth year; then it overwhelmed him. First there was a Mrs. Twombly, a customer. Then his landlady thought she had captured him. Later he found himself kissing the office stenographer. The librarian, too, set his heart fluttering, and then he engaged himself to Helen Remmick, the daughter of a member of the firm. Yet it was not Helen Remmick who finally put an end to his bachelor days.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the headings of "BOOKS WANTED" and "BOOKS FOR SALE" book-trade subscribers are given under their own names five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertising for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding one hundred lines a year, a maximum of fifty lines under "Books Wanted" and fifty lines under "Books for Sale," and if over five lines are sent for either department in only one issue, or fifty lines for each department within the calendar year, the excess is at ten cents a line. Bills for this service will be rendered monthly. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "HELP WANTED" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

GOOD BOOK MAKING vs. THE OTHER KIND

Most publishers prefer to maintain a high standard of quality in their books, especially when the cost is no higher. The following from the author of a book which we recently manufactured in its entirety illustrates the point:

"The books have reached me, and I want to thank you for the personal interest you have taken in putting out such an attractive volume. It seems to me to be about the last word in book-making art. I am more than pleased with the appearance of the book. Every suggested change which I made in the proof has been faithfully and correctly carried into the book. I appreciate the kindness you have shown in looking after the matter in such a careful way."

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in APRIL, 1917

This Reference List includes and classifies all books entered in the annotated Weekly Record during the past month, together with additional titles not therein listed, covering law and medicine, many government documents, university publications, pamphlets, and books of limited character. All works are here entered under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in CAPS and SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics. Under subject entries asterisks (*) designate books previously entered in the Weekly Record, in most cases with descriptive annotation.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in caps, Q, O, D, etc.; for books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i. e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

➔ WAR ➔

BY PIERRE LOTITranslated by Marjorie Laurie*Price $1.25 net

The prevailing note of the book is genuine and tender sympathy with the victims of German barbarity. He describes, in simple but touching words, his encounters with wounded soldiers, Sisters of Mercy and homeless little Belgian orphans. But even under P. Loti's mask of artistic restraint one can recognize the wrathful and contemptuous bitterness that fills the soul of every Frenchman when he thinks of the things that have been done in the name of war.
